

Who Pays Freelance Journalists the Most?

These rates are relatively rare, accounting for less than 10% of all payments in the data set.

For a 3,000 word story, a writer at the top of this scale would take home $9,000 before taxes. They would have to write four of these stories per year to make the average journalist salary of $40,000

